

Routes through Cubelles

Plaça del Castell | Corral d'en Cona
Rocacrespa | Can Foix

This route, which may not seem very attractive at first sight, as it traverses a highly urbanised part of Cubelles, holds numerous surprises. As you walk, you will come across hidden spots, such as the pine grove you cross after turning off Carrer dels Garrofers inside the Corral d'en Cona housing estate, the fields in the Ricreu area or, further on, the Salze farmhouse, the vineyards which become green in summer and the dry-stone border, whose origin is readily apparent, given their rounded shapes.

Camí de Rocacrespa also holds surprises. The first is a group of magnificent oak trees and, behind them, on the other side of the Foix, three pines which stand out above the rest. As you come closer, you will find a zip line, as well as the pulley onto which weight was loaded and the wheel used to pull it back.

After Rocacrespa, at the next meander, you will find Can Foix (formerly Mas Cucurella). This 16th-century Catalan farmhouse has an excellently preserved ice well and sits amid stunning scenery, where you can rest beneath the shade of the mulberry trees. This holiday camp, which is open all year round, offers visitors a host of options: accommodation only, full room and board, family stays and other activities, such as hikes to the top of Talaia, walks to the Foix reservoir, day trips, etc., and all with impeccable service.

The way back, which takes you past the ruins of the Sant Pau Chapel, follows almost the exact same path as the outbound route. After seeing a few carob trees along the path, you will approach Cubelles near the Molí de la Palma and enter the village via Carrer dels Horts. This will take you to Plaça del Castell, where you will find a permanent exhibition on the clown Charlie Rivel. Without a doubt an extremely well-rounded route.
